Alex Marjanovic is a Managing Director at Ankura, based in Irvine. With more than 14 years of eDiscovery and managed-review experience, Alex has overseen business development, the build-out of sales operations, and the post-acquisition integration of sales teams. His core expertise is managing sales-consultant teams and developing the workflows that enable in-house and outside counsel to streamline their eDiscovery, document review, and production protocols.

Prior to joining Ankura, Alex was a managing partner of sales for Epiq Global's eDiscovery and managed review division. Over seven years, he managed the business development executives, sales operations, and customer service teams who supported a client base of law offices and corporate legal departments throughout the southwestern US. These teams' core services included information governance, early case assessment, data acquisition and forensics, ESI processing, database hosting, and technology-assisted review. Alex previously held a series of positions at Esquire Litigation Solutions. He had been in a managerial role in eDiscovery and document management group when Epiq acquired this division.
